COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The ban on all-night parking on the streets is in effect as of Nov. 1. Violators will be issued tickets as vehicles interfere with the plows which could be in operation soon.

There will be a list published of roads to be designated "limited user" by the Board of Selectmen as soon as we can compile it. This category will place the roads in a classification that permits the public to use the right of way but prevents a person from demanding maintenance where it cannot be justified. A road in this category can be returned to its former classification if circumstances warrant the change.

As more people build camps for hunting and fishing on the back roads a town must protect itself from unreasonable demands for roads to low value property.

VISITING NURSE SERVICE NOW AVAILABLE IN BETHEL AREA

A visiting nurse service is now available in the Bethel area according to an announcement by the Androscoggin Home Health Services, Inc., a regional health agency located in Lewiston which provides services to significant portions of the three-county region of Androscoggin-Franklin-Oxford.

Providing professional nursing care locally will be Mrs. Annabelle Lee, R. N., of Bethel. Mrs. Lee formerly held positions at the Stephens Memorial Hospital and the Andrews nursing home. Specific communities she will serve are Bethel, Gilead, Greenwood, Hanover, Newry, Woodstock, Albany, and Milton township.

The basic offering of the Androscoggin Home Health Services (AHHS) is part-time nursing care of the sick and disabled, a service "tailor-made", but not limited to the chronically ill who require long-term, intermittent care. In many cases the availability of this service enables hospitalized persons to return home sooner than might otherwise be possible. For others it may help prevent or postpone institutionalization.

All AHHS care is given under the direction of the patient's physician who must submit a written "plan of care" to the agency in order for a patient to be admitted to care. Referrals for service may come from any source, however, and in cases where patients are referred by someone other than the physician in charge, the agency may make an evaluation visit for the purpose of recommending a course of action to the physician. The decision of whether or not home care is appropriate then rests with him.

The AHHS is certified by the Social Security Administration. Thus persons eligible for Medicare benefits may receive a liberal amount of home health care at little or no additional cost. Some other programs which assist in paying for services, either 100% or in part, are Title XIX (Medicaid), Old Age Assistance, and private major medical insurance plans. For persons who are uncovered by any program, or incompletely covered, there is a fee for service which is based on a sliding scale designed to take into consideration each individual's ability to pay.

Inquiries about services may be directed to Mrs. (Herbert) Lee at her residence in Bethel.

COURSES IN GERMAN AND RUSSIAN CONTEMPLATED

Short, intensive conversational courses in German and Russian for students and adults are contemplated for the spring semester. Those interested may apply to Mrs. Noyl, Bethel, telephone 824-2880.

GREENWOOD CITY

— Mrs. Collista Morgan, Corres. —

During the busy fall I have missed the out doors, the whispering pines, the delicate nervous aspens as they breathe and bob their heads and mumble, and all these precious things called beauty.

So last Sunday, late afternoon, I took my camera and we journeyed back, back into the shadows of the aged woods, along an old road.

Those forest lanes are never straight, so round every corner there may wait surprises for eye or ear. No matter where you chance to be there is always beauty for those who see.

The noisy river was twice spanned by rustic bridges. Looking down stream the trees stood out in silhouettes beneath a fading gray sky. One lonely dead spruce, wind twisted, overhung the river bank while others in the background were etched in blackest ink.

Arriving into a meadow, the milkweed was pouring out its feathery softness, and grasses were shriveled and brown.

Above all with magnificent height stood the ancient "Town Meeting Elm" so named because of the story handed down through the years that the first town meeting of Greenwood was held there. Authentic or not it is located in the section where the first settlements were made.

Looking up at it through my camera's eye, a raw wind pushed clouds in masses across the sky.

Adding to the picture round about were the brilliant red sumacs, the screaming jays, while all along the roadside the little crickets uttered their bell-like rasp of intermittent singing.

It was a picturesque setting for this age old elm, this monarch of time, keeping vigil in a forest serene among towering hills with valleys nestled between.

Much too soon we had to leave but enjoyed the reverse view on our homeward way.

There were birches in their graceful pride here and there by the road side as well as the gold touch of squirrels tails rustling their way through the autumn leaves.

The leafy roof no longer conceals the sky and we could see the baby hills as they lay snug protected by the mother mountains with their dark green clad slopes.

Thus we left our wooded pathway and our laughing brook to trickle on, while we returned to the main highway.

But many times in a moment of quietness I walk again beneath the old elm and picture the early settlements here. I hear the whispering of the breeze and see the scudding clouds. All around me everywhere, there's the wooded pathway without a care.

The Aurora on the northern horizon Friday evening made a rose flush that spread into a wide flare. I stepped outside to view it. The night was clear and still with twinkling stars. This mysterious illumination grew more and more impressive, long pathways of quivering light unrolled themselves and streamed across the sky. They flamed and flickered, disappearing, reappearing, rising, falling. It was as if the lid to a tremendous kettle had been lifted and the heavens reflected the white-hot contents. As always when the Aurora is in full display I marvel that such an exhibition of energy can continue in such silence. I listen, thinking that at any moment there should be a rumble of thunder or the sound of a hundred Niagaras. I also picture the whine of sled runners, the panting of dogs and the scuff of moccasins. These mighty fingers so much like polar search lights continued their display for about two hours then disappeared as easily as they had come.

Mrs. Fred Curtis was hostess to a Stanley Party recently. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holt, South Paris, were callers at Mr. and Mrs. Leonas Holt's Sunday afternoon.

The Hayeses and Ernest Morris, topped out the kitchen chimney at the Hayes homestead on Saturday.

Chester Hazelton and Phil King were callers at Roland Hayes on Saturday evening.

Clyde Morgan saw a flock of snowbirds at the farm this week. They were feeding on seeds and wheeling about from one place to another.

The Hayes boys were home for a day of hunting on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cogswell and family of Freeport and Carl Curtis of Portland were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Curtis.

IN MEMORIAM

Dear Mom, though death took you away

Almost a year ago today

We would not wish you back again

To where you suffered so much pain.

We miss you more and more each day

Than words of our's can ever say

Yet we know through Love and Faith that there

You are free from pain and in God's care.

LANGUAGE ARTS CLASS

AUTHOR CREATIVE POEMS

The following creative poems have been written by Miss Varner's Language Arts Class at the Crescent Park School.

Rain.
Rain, rain,
We need you so.

Keep coming down
It is better than snow.

Although I like to ski
I would like to have rain.

Rain brings good crops.
And snow does not.

Levi Brown

Rain
It rains upon the trees and shrubs
It even rains upon the ground.

Where the sticks and twigs lay all around.

It rains upon houses and barns
It even rains upon the farms.

Edward Kennett

Rain
Surprise! Surprise! Surprise!
I got rain in my eyes.

It doesn't hurt.
It's just a surprise.

Surprise! Surprise! Surprise!
I got rain in my eyes.

Ronnie Gilbert

Rain
The rain is pouring down on the roofs

It reminds me of the sound of little hoofs.

Jackie Crockett

Rain
Outside on a rainy day
I like to walk in the puddles.

I like to hear the rain on the window sills

Splatter here and there.
If the sun comes out

I always watch for a rainbow.
I love rainy days

'Cause they give my flowers water.

Jackie Morin

Rain
The rain is so wet,
Why do we have rain?

People tell me it causes floods
People tell me it makes the horses lame.

But the rain is still wet

It keeps the plants alive.

Tommy Howe

Rain
Puddles of rain coming down
But watch out!

For when you step in one
Your feet might get wet.

Katherine Henley

Rain
Rain, rain is good for trees
The more it rains the more the trees grow.

Rain, rain, rain,
That's all it can do.

When it rains,
There's nothing to do.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Content is Being Sponsored
 By Poetry Fellowship of Maine

61 School Street
 Lexington, Mass. 02173
 November 1, 1968

Dear Editor,

Since civilization began, poetry and song have been important elements in learning and the enjoyment of life. Young people should be encouraged in appreciation and understanding this.
 Therefore, I hope that you will be generous in bringing the following information to the attention of those eligible.

The Poetry Fellowship of Maine is sponsoring a contest for secondary students in the state.
 The topic this year is "Human Rights", the form is to be free verse, the length no more than 32 lines. The deadline is Feb. 1st, 1969. A copy of the poem (only one) must have the pupil's name, the name of his school, and the name of his English teacher.
 This is to be mailed to:

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Rourke
 Contest Chairman
 61 School Street
 Lexington, Mass. 02173

A first prize of five dollars is offered; a second of three dollars and a third of two dollars. There are also three honorable mentions. The winners will be entertained at dinner, when the Fellowship meets in May, and will read their poems to the group.

This year let us have every town and school—public and private—in the state be represented.
 This can be done only through your publicity.

Cordially,
 Elizabeth M. Rourke

TELSTAR R. H. S. NEWS

GATB (General Aptitude Test Battery)

The GATB will be given to selected seniors on Tuesday, November 12, at 9:00 a. m. in the Lecture Room. The Test will be administered by Mr. George Cunningham from the Maine State Employment Service at Rumford assisted by Mrs. Priscilla Hotte and Mr. David Denison, Counselors.

There are several reasons for scheduling this test. In the first place, any senior who seeks a job through the Maine State Employment Service is given the GATB to help determine individual aptitudes in various vocational areas. Secondly, seniors planning to attend vocational schools, such as MVTL, are required to take this test in order to be admitted. Some local companies, such as the Oxford Paper Company, require this test. Finally, there are a number of seniors who have little or no knowledge of their post-high school plans. For these students, the test results will be of value to them and their counselor in helping them plan for their future.

The GATB measures some verbal and numerical abilities, spatial form perception, clerical perception, motor speed, finger dexterity, and manual dexterity. The test will take about 1½ hours for the written part and about an hour for the manipulation section. Results of the test will be sent to Telstar and each senior will have an opportunity to discuss the scores with their counselor.

It is important that the selected seniors take the GATB on the scheduled date, as it will not be given again this year at Telstar. The results of this test could be surprising to the students. Even if a person has not done well in school, he or she could still do well on the GATB. Some parts of the test could reveal hidden talents and abilities or skills which a student may not know they possess.

Visitors at the Guidance Department have been M. G. Tolman, director of admissions, Southern Maine Vocational Technical Institute of Portland, and Douglass Schumann, associate director of admissions of Springfield College, Springfield, Mass. The students are always notified in advance whenever a representative of a college or vocational school is planning to visit Telstar. If, at any time, a parent is interested in visiting with one of these representatives they are welcome to do so.

On Nov. 15 approximately 35 students from Telstar Regional will visit the New Hampshire Vocational Institute at Berlin, N. H., accompanied by Mrs. Hotte and Mr. Dennison. Larry Twitchell, the director of admissions, will conduct a tour of the campus after which the students will be entertained at lunch. All students will arrive back at Telstar in time to take their regular afternoon bus home.

Telstar Regional High held a mock election on Monday, Nov. 4. There were 407 ballots cast using a qualified check list. Hubert H. Humphrey received 200, Richard M. Nixon received 199 and George Wallace, former governor of Alabama, received eight votes. In the Second Congressional District William D. Hathaway won by 221 votes against Elden H. Shute, Jr., with 189. The Telstar Regional election was a good indicator in view of the close percentage voting of the popular vote in the National Election for the major candidates.

Grades have been released in the following subjects: 124 English, Mr. Chretien; 111 Justice, Injustice and Mercy, Mrs. Apple; 7th grade English, Mrs. Grover; U. S. History, Mr. Bean; 8th grade Math, Mr. Davis; 710 Home Economics, Mrs. Arsenault; 7th grade General Science, Mr. Roy; 8th grade Social Science, Mr. Emens; 410 Patterns in Math, Mr. Keegan.
